cut, strategically, how are we going to absorb that cut? What kind of changes do we need to make to still deliver core services?"

Neighborhood Resources administrators the federal funding that Chandler receives from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, including CDBG and HOME funds, and money for subsidized-housing programs — public housing and Housing Choice Vouchers.

Despite cuts to CDBG and HOME, the ebb and flow of federal funding has helped soften the blow for Chandler residents.

In 2009, Chandler received $376,240 from a CDBG-Reinvestment grant and $575,271 from a Homelessness Prevention and Rapid Re-Housing grant, both part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act. Both were one-time grants.

The CDBG-R money was used for the Knox Road traffic-calming project (capital improvements in low- to moderate-income neighborhoods are eligible for CDBG funds) while the other funds went toward homelessness-prevention efforts.

The city's affordable-housing efforts also were bolstered by funds from the first and third rounds of the Neighborhood Stabilization Program that began in 2008. Those funds (Chandler received $2.4 million in 2009 and $1.3 million in 2011) have been used for first-time homebuyer and affordable-rental programs for income-qualified residents.

Chandler also has benefited from sound fiscal policy during the lean years. Morrison said the city's practice of not using CDBG or HOME funds to pay for staff positions has allowed the department to use the money to help the intended recipients. Chandler uses general-fund money to pay for staff positions.

CDBG FUNDS IN CHANDLER

The Community Development Block Grant program, which began in 1974 with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, provides communities with resources to address a wide range of community-development needs. CDBG provides annual grants to 1,209 local and state governments.

CDBG funds are used in ways to benefit low- to moderate-income people. Grants are used for programs that include homelessness prevention, code enforcement and blight elimination, fair-housing services, public housing and capital-improvement projects.
